Assistant Professor
Arizona State University
School of Social Transformation (job # 11787)

The School of Social Transformation, an interdisciplinary unit at Arizona State University (http://sst.asu.edu/), invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor with expertise in sociology of race using quantitative methods and conducting research on health, families or poverty in African American Communities. The successful candidate will be expected to provide excellent instruction, conduct research publishable in top-tier academic journals, participate in service to the university and profession and, and demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities. Anticipated start date is August, 2017.

Minimum Qualifications: a PhD in sociology by the time of appointment; demonstrated potential for excellence in teaching and mentoring students; evidence of potential for success in securing external funding, and demonstrated interest in interdisciplinary collaborations. Desired Qualifications: demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities.

To apply, please submit as a single pdf to SSTFacultySearch@asu.edu the following materials: a letter of application describing your research and teaching interests, a curriculum vitae and three letters of reference.

Initial deadline for receipt of complete applications is December 14, 2016 and if not filled, every week thereafter until the search is closed. A background check is required for employment.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by the law.  